

IS UNITED STATES READY TO SEND ARMY TO MEXICO TO PROTECT ITS CITIZENS?

FIRST BRIGADE ORDERED TO ASSEMBLE AT NEWPORT NEWS
READY FOR FOREIGN SERVICE.

SENATE AGAINST MOVE

More Vessels Ordered to the Coast of Mexico—Prepare to Land Marines to Protect American Interests.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The first brigade of the first division of the army about 2,000 strong has been ordered prepared for "expeditionary service." It is composed of the third infantry at Madison Barracks and Osewego, the fifth infantry at Plattsburg and the 29th infantry at Fort Niagara all in New York.

This organization has just been brought into existence as part of the scheme of army reorganization and its responsiveness to the call for foreign service may be regarded as a first practical test of the value of the new system.

The first brigade will entrain for Newport News, Virginia only in the event that the preparatory orders issued this morning are followed by others setting the troops in motion. Within twenty-four hours after such an order it is expected that the most distant organizations within the brigade will arrive at Newport News.

Major General Aleshire, quarter master general today followed up the orders to commission the army transports at Newport News by directing the immediate assembly of food supplies, wagon transportation and other equipment for troops on foreign service.

The transports are the Meade, McClelland, Sumner, and Kilpatrick. The four easily can accommodate the entire first brigade of the first division constituting the advance guard of an expeditionary force of 15,000 men available for foreign service in an emergency.

Galveston, Texas would be the port of departure of the artillery forces and some cavalry in the advent that it were necessary to follow up the first brigade. Secretary Stimson had an early conference with President Taft in the White House proper during which he advised the president that the army was prepared to carry out the plans formulated last night. "There is nothing new to be said," he declared at the end of his talk with the president. "The situation is the same as last night."

Preparations have been made to move approximately 2500 marines from the ships of the Atlantic fleet and the Guantanamo naval station to Vera Cruz to be held in readiness there for landing in case it should be necessary to relieve the foreign legations in Mexico city.

Declaration against immediate intervention in Mexico was made today by Senator Cullion chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations.

"I trust there will be no immediate intervention by the United States," he said. "I do not think the time has come when we are called upon to interfere. If we once take the step we cannot take it back. I do not think that under the present conditions we are called upon to take the burden."

Fighting in the heart of Mexico City endangering thousands of lives is looked upon with apprehension, but

HOME RULE MEASURE BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Bill Providing for Home Rule in Cities Introduced in Assembly Today—Short Ballot Bill Submitted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Feb. 12.—A uniform bill giving home rule to all cities in the state was introduced by Assemblyman Minkley, socialist. The bill delegates to all cities all powers now possessed by the legislature relative to enacting measures for municipalities. A bill providing for the short ballot and another for the appointment of the mayor of the city treasurer, city controller and city attorney instead of their election by the people were presented in the assembly as coming from the city club of Milwaukee. A resolution was adopted by the assembly providing for the appointment of members of this legislature on a commission to confer with a similar commission of Michigan with reference to the legislation of a uniform character relating to fishing in Lake Michigan. The senate adopted a resolution recommending that President-elect Wilson appoint Joseph E. Davis of Wisconsin a member of his cabinet.

ROOT AGAIN URGES REPEALING RULING

Believes This is the Only Way Out of an Embarrassing Situation.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Repeal of the free passage provisions of the Panama canal act as the "wisest and best way out of a very embarrassing and industrious situation," was urged by Senator Root today before the senate committee on interoceanic canals in support of his bill for a repeal of the provision which exempts American coast-wise shipping from the payment of tolls. The free passage provision was in all practical effect a ship subsidy given to "the most highly protected industries in the United States" and was being defended by the state department as a subsidy in the negotiations with Great Britain he said. "I do not believe the omission of tolls will in any way affect trans-continental freight rates," the senator declared.

MILITIA HOLD THE SITUATION IN HAND

Searching for Dead and Wounded as the Result of Yesterday's Engagement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Charlestown, W. Va., Feb. 12.—Threading steep paths and plunging into the dense underbrush covering the mountain around Muchlow where mine guards and striking miners battled early in the week, squads of militia men today sought for dead and wounded. Military officers believe that many more men than have been reported were shot during the fighting and were carried away to remote sections of the hill to friends to escape arrest. The military forces under command of Adj. Gen. Elliott are in complete control of the strike zone today and martial law is being rigidly enforced. Many arrests have been made and the prisoners removed to Pinta Creek where military action will be taken and the men tried. There is no promise of an immediate resumption of the hostilities.

SUFFRAGETTES START ON THEIR LONG HIKE

Leave New York Today for the Two Hundred and Thirty Mile Walk to Washington.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Feb. 12.—"Vote for women! Vote for women! Washington! Washington!" This shrill, feminine cheer which attracted the crowds to Hudson terminal in the down town New York today to watch the departure of the army of suffragettes who are going to march to Washington to take part in the woman's parade on March 3rd. Sixteen "regulars" who have promised to march the entire distance of 230 miles and some half a hundred sympathizers who planned to march at least the first day, mustered shortly before nine o'clock at the megaphone call of General Rosalie G. Jones, commander of the expedition and veteran of the recent hike to Albany.

They left the city by the Hudson Tube for Newark, N. J. They are scheduled for a stop today at Elizabeth, N. J., and tonight at Metuchen, a day's journey of 15 miles. They expect to reach Washington on March 1st. The regulars were clad in pilgrim cloaks and hoods and carried knapsacks filled with suffragette literature.

This action was taken after learning that negro troops would be placed in the line of march ahead of the South Carolina soldiers.

REPUBLICANS OF MISSOURI HAVE LINCOLN DAY BANQUET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 12.—The Missouri Association of Young Republicans met in this city today for its annual Lincoln day convention and banquet. Since the adoption of the state primary law, which abolished nominating conventions, the association's annual meetings have been made occasions for important conferences of the Republican editors and other party leaders throughout the state. Today's proceedings were mostly of a routine character. Most interest centers in the convention banquet tonight, at which Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, and former Congressman James E. Watson of Indiana are to be the chief speakers.

Well-Informed Sales- people Make Shopping a Pleasure.

How delightful it is when you go shopping in an undecided state of mind to find a salesperson who can tell you what fabrics are to be most popular, and what it is most appropriate for a woman of your size; or one who will sell you the hat that is really becoming; and the candid enough not to say that "every one looks lovely on you." The merchants who advertise in THE GAZETTE take particular pains to see that their salespeople are well-informed on new styles and correct styles in dress, furniture, or whatever they may sell. You will be well advised if you accept their help—which is never aggressively given.

FARM HOUSE BURNED IN TOWN OF HARMONY

Residence on Farm of H. D. Clarke Two Miles East of Milton Destroyed With Part of Contents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milton, Feb. 12.—The fire department made a run out to the farm of H. D. Clarke, two miles east of the village at 8 o'clock this morning in response to an alarm. The house and much of the contents were burned. The loss is estimated at $2,000. Insured in the Harmony Mutual.

The fire was too far advanced for the department to be of assistance upon their arrival. The fire was caused by a defective chimney in the kitchen. Mrs. Clarke was ill and a fire was built in the night and the fire was not discovered until it was well under way. Mrs. Clarke smelled smoke, got up, went out of doors and saw the roof blazing. Most of the goods on the upper floor were burned.

STREETS OF MEXICAN CITY SCENE OF A FIERCE FIGHT

REBEL FORCES AND FEDERAL TROOPS ENGAGE IN ARTILLERY AND RIFLE DUEL DURING DAY.

DIAZ IS IN COMMAND

Both Sides Show Determination to Fight Show Out Inside the Limits of Mexican Capital.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Mexico City, Feb. 12.—The federal troops re-opened the battle in the streets of the Mexican capital at 6:35 this morning with a light artillery fire. The action soon became general, all the artillery on both sides being brought into play. The cannon fire was augmented by sweeping salvos from the machine guns, while the infantry came into action with volleys and individual shooting.

The Mutual Life Insurance building was set on fire at 8 o'clock by a shell from a rebel field gun. It is a four-story structure on the corner of Cinco Mayo and San Juan de Letran streets. The rebels under Felix Diaz started to advance toward the national palace at a quarter to nine.

The rebels seemingly are employing heavier cannon than they did yesterday. They directed their fire toward the national palace and out the higher buildings in the center of the business district, on many of which federal machine guns are mounted and federal riflemen are posted.

The contending federal and rebel forces occupied this morning practically the same positions as at the beginning of the fighting yesterday. Felix Diaz, the leader of the rebels, appeared to be prepared to offer resistance whenever the commander of the government troops saw fit to resume hostilities.

An effort made by the federalists to isolate the rebels from the water supply was ineffective because there are a number of artesian wells in the portion of the city occupied by the rebels.

According to reports from the rebel lines Diaz utilized the night hours in further fortifying his positions. The federal force was strengthened during the night by reinforcement of both artillery and infantry. The new arrivals took up positions along the streets leading to the scene of battle.

The streets of the capital during the hours of darkness had the appearance of a great armed camp. Soldiers of all branches of the service slept on the pavements.

In many parts of the city the electric wires were cut by bullets and this resulted in long stretches of almost complete darkness. Thousands of residents took advantage of this to escape from the danger zone.

A number of robberies were committed by the lawless elements emboldened by the withdrawal of police protection.

A few residents who were able to do so immediately after the incursion of Diaz into the city hurriedly stocked their homes with provisions, at the high prices prevailing, but the poorer people are suffering.

Nothing practical yet has been accomplished as a result of the protests of the diplomats.

The suggestion of the foreign diplomats that a neutral zone be established is considered unfeasible by the government, which points out that it is impossible to foretell in which direction the action may be shifted.

In reality, on account of the long range of the cannon used, there is no place in the city which can be said to be safe.

Rebel Jalk the famous old prison, has been thrown open by the rebels and from 3,000 to 5,000 desperate prisoners have been let loose.

United States Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson and the German minister went to the national palace this afternoon to demand from President Madero that the battle cease immediately.

The British legation is under fire from the rebel position and a battery of federal artillery has been placed close by as a protection.

In Chihuahua, Feb. 12.—Rioting broke out last night in Chihuahua City, the rioters shouting "Vivas" for the Felix Diaz revolution, say the passengers who arrived here early today from the state capital. It was not learned whether the federal garrison had revolted.

Passengers reported that when the train passed through Chihuahua a surging mob filled the streets. Shots were heard from the direction of the interior of the town of Chihuahua.

The headquarters of San Antonio Rabago, federal commander of the northern military zone, and 2,000 federal troops, are stationed here.

No account of the Chihuahua outbreak has been conveyed over the telegraph lines which are strictly censored on. The federal commander at Juarez denies all knowledge of the affair.

The artillery fire of the rebels from their positions at the arsenal extended in several directions, on account of the encircling tactics adopted by the government troops.

Diaz turned his guns in the direction of the British legation shortly after noon in order to reply to the fire of a federal battery stationed there. The rebels strengthened their positions by placing more men and field guns on the Y. M. C. A. building commanding the arsenal against which the troops continued to direct a terrible fire from their artillery and small arms.

A shell tore a hole through the iron shutter protecting the cable office and fell inside. Porters Hotel, and the American Club in both of which scores of American visitors and residents are gathered are in the direct line of fire. Another heavy shell struck a building in front of the cable office ripping away a corner of the structure.

The fire at the Mutual Life Insurance building has been extinguished, but much damage has been caused to the structure by shell.

Alphonso Miranda, one of the Zapatista leaders entered the capital last night with 300 of his followers who are harassing the federal troops at various points. The cable office was again struck by many shrapnel shells.

Sensational Escape.
The escape of the consulate general Arnold Shanklin and his staff from the Mexican consulate building during the seven hours' battle between the federal troops and the rebels in the streets of Mexico City yesterday was sensational.

Broke Doors Down.
Mr. Shanklin broke down two doors and passed through into another door into an adjoining building making his exit on a cross street, which was at the moment free from rifle firing. The consulate general and his staff carried along with them a wounded man, who had been brought into the consulate building for treatment.

GIVES FINE LECTURE ON KIPLING'S WORKS

WILLIAM LLOYD DAVIS OF UNIVERSITY EXTENSION DEPARTMENT SPEAKS AT TWILIGHT CLUB.

HIS POEMS ON WOMEN

And Especially "The Vampire" and "The Female of the Species" Are Given Interesting Interpretation.

Members of the Twilight club who are admirers of Rudyard Kipling and his works had that admiration increased as a result of the excellent readings and explanations given by William Lloyd Davis of the extension department of the university at the meeting at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening.

Others who have never taken more than a passing interest in the greatest English poet of modern times were awakened to a realization of his true worth. Mr. Davis was careful to explain the environment of the man, raised in the midst of the peculiar conditions at Bombay and educated at the boys' schools in England.

Mr. Davis' recitations of which he gave a number of the more popular poems, were perfectly delivered. In full sympathy with the author and understanding exactly the thought that he was trying to express, the selections took on a new meaning to many. "Tommy Atkins," a realistic picture of the British soldier, spurred and stunned in times of peace but exalted in times of trouble, was one of the first readings. One of the popular barrack room ballads, "On the Road to Mandalay," was sung with pleasing voice and expression. "Gunga Din," telling of the faithful native water boy always on hand for thirsty soldiers, was another delightful reading.

Mr. Davis devoted the larger part of his lecture, however, to a consideration of Kipling's women. He explained that Kipling had never known much of the ordinary society women of the English cities. His experience had been limited to the native women, to the hangers on of the barrack room, to women in their more elementary environment. As a result he was acquainted with their instincts and passions, all free from complications of modern social conditions.

In his poem "The Ladies," which was read, Kipling brings out the thought of woman's natural attraction toward the male. In "The Female of the Species," to which the lecturer gave special attention, Kipling explained the fighting spirit in the female, an embodiment of the desire to protect her young. Although this poem was originally given out as an argument against woman suffrage, Mr. Davis declared that he was sure the real intent was quite opposite. He held the opinion that Kipling wanted to show that women while creatures of convictions were always impelled to action in the interests of the home, while men were too prone to think of commercial interests. It was really a word in favor of the women.

Another type of woman is displayed in the poem, "The Vampire." Based on the portrait painted by his brother-in-law, Burne-Jones, and called "The Vampire," Kipling unfolded the true character of the woman who lives entirely for show and ostentation; the woman with a beautiful body and a love of adornment, who cannot understand the love of a man. It is a sad picture of a man's life wasted on a woman who never understood the beauty of home or of children, who was always influenced by her own vanity and in favor of the women.

Before closing his lecture Mr. Davis touched briefly on Kipling's relations to the British government and declared that the poet was really a prophet. He explained the significance of his "Recessional," written at the time of Queen Victoria's jubilee, in which he pointed the way for the British people, away from vain display and commercial wealth, to a simple faith in God and His care. Kipling shows his religious side, free from the taint of creed and full of trusting faith.

Frank H. Jackson presided at the meeting last night and will also name the members of the committee which will have charge of the program and arrangements for the ladies' night in April.

CIVIC TOPICS TO BE DISCUSSED TONIGHT

Annual Meeting of the Commercial Club This Evening at the Myers Hotel.

This evening at the Myers hotel, the members of the Commercial Club will hold their annual banquet and election of officers followed by a general discussion of civic matters which should prove most interesting to all concerned. The club has accomplished much during the past year and its plans for the coming twelve months include a Home Coming and Fourth of July celebration, July 4th and 5th.

The committee named by the directors of the club to formulate a plan for this event, have decided to report that the Fourth be celebrated by a revival of the famous Noddy Such Bros. circus, which has made Janesville famous from coast to coast, and accounts of which have appeared in many of the leading magazines. This in itself assures the success of the plan.

The plans for the Home Coming feature will also be taken up and it is probable that the report of the special committee will be accepted and it will be determined to hold the proposed gatherings. The question of organizing the county as regards agriculture will also be taken up and Secretary Lane has interesting data to present to the club for their consideration in this respect. This is an important step which will have direct effect upon the whole county, not Janesville alone.

It is also understood that other matters will be taken up and it is hinted that the recall question may be discussed pro and con. This, however, is not on the regular program but may come up in the general discussion following the reports of the committees. Covers will be laid for 125 persons and the election of officers of the club will be held, the nominating committee being prepared to make their report on the primary held by mail.

The list of membership of the club is as follows. Where firm names are mentioned the members of the corporation are included in the membership list:

Edward Amerpohl, C. A. Buchholz, Bower City Bank, Baumann Bros., C. Bates, F. J. Batley & Son, Brittingham & Hixon Lumber Co., W. H. Blair, Blodgett Milling Co., C. I. Peers, F. A. LIQUOR INTERESTS CLASH AT HEARING BEFORE THE SENATE

Retail Liquor Dealers' Association Tell The Brewers Where They Get Off At. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 12.—Retail liquor dealers clashed with brewery representatives before the senate committee on excise and fees yesterday afternoon in defense of the senate bill for the divorce of saloons from brewery control. H. Nolan, chairman of the legislative committee of the national retail dealers' association, and formerly connected with the United States Brewers' association, claimed the brewers have a gentlemanly agreement by which retailers are driven to buy beer at prices dictated by the brewers, and that big brewers of national reputation do not hesitate to sell their goods to divalkeepers and other undesirable characters.

W. H. Austin, attorney for the brewers, said the bill meant little however it fares in the legislature, because it would not stand the test of the courts. He maintained the legislature may not legislate for one class of people against another class. Saloon conditions are much better than they were ten years ago in Wisconsin, he declared. He could not see how the bill would elevate the saloon business. His charge that retailers get from $35 to $40 for a barrel of beer was hotly disputed by Alderman John Koerner of Milwaukee, a prominent retailer, who said he expected to go out of the business and was no more afraid to speak out against the brewer. Koerner intimated that Austin had drawn up the Baker law. Austin did not answer this insinuation.

Nolan rejoiced in the passage by congress of the Webb-Kenyon bill prohibiting shipment of liquor into dry territory, as a measure tending to weaken the hold of the big brewers on the public. He declared the system of saloon control as now conducted in a disgrace to the state and that the aim of the state retailers' association is to eliminate evils in the business, drive out the tough element, enforce laws and ordinances, and prevent extortion by the brewers.

Alderman Koerner, vice-president of the state organization, claimed the "brewers' trust" controls over 70 percent of the saloons, that brewers raise not only the price of beer but the rent of the buildings out of all proportion to their value, that they control the leases and otherwise exert a monopolistic influence. "A saloon-keeper is as decent and respectable a man as any other citizen if he conducts his business decently," he said.

John F. Laugen, president of the association, said brewery control puts irresponsible men in charge of saloons. Another retailer proposed a sort of civil service test for prospective retailers.

Rev. H. W. Reed, Madison, seventh day adventist spoke for the bill. Assemblyman Richardson's bill providing that no fee or license money shall be collected at all, came into the assembly. J. J. Blinde, of this city, who would require a bond of $500 as a guarantee of faithful compliance with the laws and ordinances. He claims that municipalities exact "kick-back" money for the revenue to be gained, and that if they get no money out of it they will not countenance saloons at all.

Several bills clarifying the power of the railroad commission were introduced in the assembly today. One empowers the railroad commission to investigate overcharges for freight shipments within two years. Under the present law this power is limited to two years. The interstate commerce commission has a provision which allows investigation and refunds within two years and the measure presented by assemblyman Fred L. Holmes of Dane county today extends the same provision to the state commission. Another bill facilitates the method of municipalities acquiring public utility properties. Still another makes more specific the law prohibiting discriminations by railroads.

Another measure introduced by Holmes requires the payment of the monthly salary of all the railroad employees within a week after the salary is due. He claims that under the present system railroads sometimes delay the payment of salaries until twenty days after it is due. He charges this as a clever scheme on the part of the railroads to borrow money of their employees.

Who are They who do Not Need Medicine?

Medicine is not needed by one who was born right, reared right, and continues to live according to Nature. Medicine is of no use to such a person.

But how many of us were born right or reared true to live right and continue to live correctly? How many of us? Very few, I think. There are S. B. HARTMAN, M. D. force, the rest of us need medicine once in a while. We need a tonic. We need a laxative.

Peruna combines these two very commonly needed remedies. Peruna is a tonic. A very efficient one too. It operates at once to increase the appetite and stimulate digestion. Peruna is also a laxative. It sets the sluggish bowels to work. Instead of the bowels allowing their contents to accumulate, decompose and poison the whole system, the bowels are invigorated by Peruna to do their work thoroughly.

With a tonic to increase the appetite and digestion, and a laxative to encourage excretion and secretion, we have a remedy par excellence. A remedy that the best of us will need occasionally. A remedy that careless ones need continually.

The laws of Nature are trampled on every day by the majority of people. The appetite becomes dull, digestion disturbed, bowels sluggish. This produces a condition of the system which makes the victim a prey to pneumonia, typhoid fever, and other acute diseases. But to keep clean inside and out, a vigorous appetite, good digestion, regular bowels, in short to take Peruna, is to fortify the system against climatic diseases and acute diseases of various kinds.

The day will come when we will all live so correctly that we will not need, either a laxative nor a tonic. But that day is far off yet. We need these two remedies. Two remedies in one bottle. Peruna. A laxative tonic. Everybody needs it occasionally. Most people need it frequently.

Umpire McGreevy, Ban Johnson's new acquisition from the Coast league, called for police protection at Sacramento last season when he thought the fans were throwing bricks at him. The air was filled with red things, and McGreevy jumped at the conclusion that the missiles were bricks. Finally one hit him and proved the brick to be a red covered score card. The police were called off.

Georges Carpentier, the French champion who is soon to make his appearance on our shores, will be kept busy if he shows up well in his first few bouts. Over in France Georges is touted as a clever boxer and a slinger with both hands. He gave Papke a hard fight, but wasn't quite equal to the Yankee. Eddie McGorty was at first mentioned as the logical opponent of Carpentier in the latter's first bout here; but the man from Oshkosh made such a poor showing in his recent bout with Freddie Hicks that his stock has gone down in the east. If Tommy Gavigan can win his bouts with Howard Morrow and George Chip this month, he may be able to break into New York and get a crack at the French champion.

Mayor Harrison of Chicago has put his heel down hard on the proposed wrestling match between Zhyazko and Lurich, planned for the latter part of this month. Reason: He says persons connected with the management of one of the wrestlers were also connected with what the mayor terms the "Labor day swindle at White Sox park in 1911." The match referred to was the one in which Frank Gorch and George Hackenschmidt were the principals.

Jim Johnstone, late of the National league, will umpire in the American association in 1913. Jim and President Lynch couldn't get along together no how. As a parting shot to Lynch, Johnstone fired this: "Lynch a great umpire! Why, I can see better around a corner than he ever could straight away."

Manager Hughie Jennings of the Detroit Tigers says: "Business before pleasure," which in his case means, "Vaudeville before baseball." Hughie has informed Owner Navin of the Detroit club that the baseball training trip must start a week late, because he has a vaudeville date that must be filled.

Roy Castleton, who pitched for the New York Americans a few years ago, has signed with the Nashville club, of the Southern League.

A number of ball players will leave for Porto Rico soon, where they will play a series of games before the season opens.

With Frank Chance leading the New Yorks and Jim Thorpe playing with the Giants, Gotham bugs will have enough to keep them busy this Spring. Rube Marquard's press work for his vaudeville stunt consists chiefly of a huge slam at Manager McGraw. Rube insists he has quit baseball on account of McGraw's shabby treatment.

On their first Eastern trip the Chicago Cubs will play an exhibition game at Syracuse, N. Y., the proceeds to be given to Mrs. Doyle, widow of the former third baseman of the Chicago team.

Catcher Johnny Kling, formerly of the Cubs and last season manager of the Boston Braves, declares that he is out of major baseball for good, but is willing to pilot a minor league team.

Six ball players who helped to make Chicago famous as members of the local National League team, are now major league managers. Dahlen, of Brooklyn; Evers of Chicago and Einker, of Cincinnati, are still with the National League, while Callahan, of Chicago, Griffith of Washington, and Chance of New York, have cast their lot with the American League.

RACINE TO PLAY IN PLACE OF KENOSHA

Latter Team Cancelled Game With Local Polo Aggregation and Belle City Was Substituted.

Kenosha has cancelled their game with the Janesville Moose Roller polo team which was to have taken place Friday night. The Janesville team received a telegram this morning stating that it will be impossible for the Kenosha team to play here at that date. Immediately the local manager wired Racine and a game with them was asked for No reason was given by Kenosha as to why they could not play here and Janesville was in fine trim to hand them a defeat for the game in which they were victorious over the locals in their first match. This game was lost only because of Janesville's inexperience and the players were confident of beating the Kenosha by a large score. Racine stepped into the lead Saturday after Janesville held it twenty-four hours.

While the game with Kenosha would have been a battle for revenge on the part of the local team, the game with Racine will be a battle for first place in the league. Racine was beaten by Janesville February 1, by the score of three to two in the best game of the season. The Janesville players realize that a great deal depends upon this game and will battle their hardest to become champions. The Janesville players hope to hear from Racine tonight, so as to clinch the game.

Theater

"THE GIRL AT THE GATE."

Cathryn Rowe Palmer, the actress of the grotesque princess in "The Girl at the Gate" is a player in musical comedy who is fully aware of her own capabilities, but is, nevertheless blind to some matters of the theatrical business that are generally regarded by actors as of prime importance. As an example, she scored a great personal success last March in Philadelphia in the original part of the main hunting "slavery" in "The Sweetest Girl in Paris." At every performance including that of the first night, she was warmly welcomed by the audience when she made her first appearance in Act I. As this appearance was made by falling down a flight of stairs, the other members of the company attributed the applause to the somewhat primitive ideas of Philadelphia as to what constitutes drama. The Sunday editors of the newspapers asked the press agent for stories about her. That gentleman, although enterprising and well informed about his business, was never able to say more than that she had toured with Raymond Hitchcock in 1908-09 in "The Merry Round," that she had taken part in the attempt in 1908 to establish a stock travesty company in the Olympic theatre in Chicago, and that she had some experience in burlesque. The result was that Tristie Fitzgibbon, the star, got all the best of the newspaper attention. At the closing performance there was a special call for Miss Palmer, those who gave the call being occupants of several rows of seats in the parquet. When she had acknowledged it, the press agent "went back" and asked: "Who are those people?" Miss Palmer's reply sent the p. a. reeling. It was: "Friends and old neighbors. You see, I was born in Philadelphia, and some of them have been here every night. Why didn't I say so before? Why, what difference does it make where I was born, as long as I do my work?"

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Our planet's course around the sun,
Once more the day has brought us,
Which takes us to the birth of one
Who noble lessons taught us;
The day, when on life's busy stage,
Appeared that gallant actor—
The friend, the patriot and sage,
The nation's benefactor.

Though obstacles in early life,
Stood frequently before him, Though clouds of penury and strife,
Hung dubiously o'er him—
The smiles of fortune, one by one,
Beamed on his humble station,
And fame declared her sturdy son.
The hero of the nation.

America's true president!
In Freedom's cause he perished;
He saw, by foul oppression rent,
The soil his fathers cherished,
He grieved and prayed for them
who strove
With servile chains around them;
And, with the strength of human love,
He broke the gyves that bound them.

True, independent, liberal,
brave,
Love's mighty power revealing,
The gift of gold could not de-prave
His warmth of human feeling!
He saw the grand, the good in all—
In every work and creature;
And though scarce known in Learning's hall,
The great World was his teacher.

From sire to son, posterity
Shall tell the martyr's story,
Who slew the fiend of Slavery,
And ages sing his glory,
And brighter yet the deeds will glow
Which to the world entwined him,
And stronger still the ties shall grow
That to our bosoms bind him.
—Henry Reed Conant.

Today marks the one hundred and fourth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The first day of the present year marked the fiftieth anniversary of the emancipation of the Southern slaves. Like Washington, who is called the Father of his Country,
Lincoln lives in the hearts of all Americans. But a few days ago congress appropriated two million dollars for the erection of a monument in the city of Washington to perpetuate his memory on a scale commensurate with the place he will always occupy in the reverence and affection of a grateful nation.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin pays the following tribute to the martyred president whose life ended just as his great work of the war was over and the days of the reconstruction were about to begin—dead, at the hands of an assassin.

"Abraham Lincoln is memorable for many things, and among others for the conspicuous degree in which his marvelous career illustrates the opportunity for the poor boy which the Constitution of the United States has created and maintains. He loved the Constitution, and proved his fidelity to it during the strain of the civil conflict that tried the nation. By reason of his conscientious and scrupulous adherence to its provisions he incurred the hostility of a set of Abolitionists that included some good though mistaken men.

"The great character of Abraham Lincoln is beyond the reach of carping critics. Nothing said in disparagement of him takes root in the public mind. On the contrary there seems sometimes a possibility of his being idolized and suffering in reputation from the enthusiasm of those among his eulogists who mount upon the wings of spread eagles and soar into the clouds.

"As a lesson for present use to be preached from a Lincoln text what could be more appropriate than the lyceum address which he delivered at Springfield nearly a quarter of a century before the Civil War commending the Constitution as the bulwark of popular freedom and sounding a warning against the self-seeking, ambitious demagogues who would assail
it?"

Further details of the fate of Captain Scott, continue to tell the tale of bravery and heroism that has seldom been equaled in the annals of exploration. The world does not yet know the full details of the tragedy but they sorrow with those left to suffer through the death of the men who gave their lives up in that Antarctic land.

Ekern eyes McGovern and the governor watches the insurance commissioner that was and is, and neither side will give in that they have not the best of the argument. Meanwhile the wires from Washington are hot with orders from the real general.

Anyone who predicts an early spring these cold days is likely to be disappointed. February is keeping up to its reputation and bids fair to even up the average with a few snow storms and blizzards before the warm weather really comes.

Illinois does not yet seem able to decide whether democrats or republicans shall be sent to the United States senate. The "Bull Moosers" have just enough votes in the two houses to hold the balance of power and may dictate the election after all.

Janesville will have a spring election this year even if it is not a recall one. School commissioners, supervisors and justices are to be elected just as usual. Care should be taken in their selection so that no mistakes are made that will be regretted later.

If it were not for the holidays in February the month would find it hard to have a place in the affections of the people even though it has but twenty-eight days.

Reading of the riots in London, Tokio and other prominent cities and the war in the Balkans and Mexico, one wonders if it is as easy a job as thought to govern a turbulent people.

The English suffragettes have learned how to throw stones straight at any rate as many prominent club men can testify.

Ex-President Diaz of Mexico will be pardoned if he wears the smile that will not come off when he reads the daily dispatches from "his old home town."

Wilson was not elected to become ruler of the destinies of the Mexican republic, but he may have the job forced upon him after all.

Doubtless it is much more satisfactory to be Mrs. Preston than the widow Cleveland, with a grown daughter just entering society.

One day last week a

PARCEL POST HOW TO USE IT.

(The new parcel post law includes some perplexing provisions. The Gazette is from day to day presenting a concise explanation of some of the more important sections of the law).

The parcel post law abolishes what was known as fourth class mail, and all parcels that formerly were sent as fourth class must now go by parcel post and must bear the parcel post stamp.

All merchandise weighing from one ounce to eleven pounds must be sent by parcel post.
Merchandise weighing from one to four ounces must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent an ounce, and is sent regardless of distance. More than four ounces must be paid for at the pound rate, which increases according to distance of destination.

The Gazette Parcel Post Map gives the zone limits, rates and all the provisions of the law. It is a good Geographical map of the United States and for a quick comprehension of the parcel post law is invaluable. This map is now on sale at 25 cents, if called for at the Gazette office, or 35 cents by mail.
The map is FREE if you pay one year's subscription in advance to the Daily Gazette.

DIVINITY OF CHRIST

FOUNDATION OF FAITH

WHOLE FABRIC OF REVELATION

FALLS TO PIECES WHEN IT

IS DENIED.

CONCEPT REASONABLE

The Rev. Father A. O. Welsh Speaks

To Second Large Audience on

Nature of Incarnation.

"The divinity of Christ is the foundation stone of the Christian religion.

Deny him to be the son of God and at once the whole fabric of revelation falls to pieces; confess him to be divine and the logical mind grasps at once the necessity of a divine, infallible teacher in the world today speaking His name,

with His authority."

This statement, clear and definite,

was one of a number of forceful thoughts conveyed by the Rev. Father

A. O. Welsh of the Paulist Fathers to those who heard his address on the "Divinity of Christ" at the Hixson Theatre last night. The Rev.

Welsh spoke to an audience even larger than which greeted him on his first appearance Monday night, and large part of it was made up of Protestants who were anxious to be informed as to the fundamental doctrines of the Roman Catholic church.

His commanding presence and the impression he gives of firm faith and confidence in the principles he sets forth, win him a respectful hearing

by all classes of people. His lecture in fact was as follows:

"Before we discuss the meaning of faith and the demands which faith makes upon us, before we consider the Bible and the church and their place in the lives of Christians, we must assure ourselves of the character of Jesus Christ Himself. Before we consider how we are to follow and imitate Christ, we must see that we are following Him. It would be foolish to imagine what means Christ left for us to accept unless we first perceived that he possessed the authority to direct such a way. If He were a passing figure in history, contributing His mite of wisdom to the world, then to tell of His church and the obligation of membership in that church would be meaningless. The question for us to solve is this: Did

Christ possess divine attributes? Did

His coming into the world lift men into His church from the realm of choice and make it a matter of necessity? The divinity of Christ is the foundation stone of the Christian religion. Deny him to be the son of God and at once the whole fabric of revelation falls to pieces;

confess him to be divine and the logical mind grasps at once the necessity of a divine, infallible teacher in the world of today speaking in

His name and with His authority.

We need to appreciate that the doctrine of the incarnation is not a hard one to accept. There is no revolt in the natural mind against the thought of God meaning man.

I am well aware that there are many who deny the divinity of Christ. They say that the Christ of the Bible is of tradition, the Christ of the apostles, and the evangelists interfered, according to the doctrines of the church, is not and cannot be the Christ of history. This ideal

Christ, God in man, spirit incarnate, conceived by an unknown miracle,

calling Himself the only son of God in the absolute and metaphysical sense, speaking as the fourth evangelist makes Him speak again

three days after his death, ascending into heaven in the face of His disciples forty days after: such a man is not real. He exists only in the man's fancy of believers who have created Him in their own minds.

The true Jesus, the Jesus of history was born as other men are born. He died like them. He performed no miracles than other men. He taught a pure morality and founded a religion less imperfect and like all reformers as a rule succumbed to the jealousies of His contemporaries, becoming the victim of Jewish hatred, was crucified, died as we die."

Outside the Catholic church there seems to be great uncertainty about the nature and personality of Jesus Christ. Even the Unitarian church, which professes to be Christian, rejects the divinity of Christ. The Literarian rejects the dogma of the Trinity because it cannot be demonstrated as a rule in mathematics. He is willing to concede a Godhead, but that is all. To the son of God, whom we call the Christ, the Unitarian yields respect, not worship. Now my friends, Christ said He was God. He assumed the office of God while on earth, and demanded the adoration and divine homage. He proclaimed Himself the God of Heaven and of Earth.

Now, if Christ were a mere man, not

God, even though the very thought were almost blasphemous, He was an impostor and His life a living lie.

Now there are thousands and thousands of men who deny the divinity of Christ and yet will not concede that obvious conclusion. They compromise the matter or think that compromise is it. Their hearts will not permit them to say that Christ was insane. They say Christ was the most perfect man that ever lived.

Grand, holier and more noble than the Serephim and Seraphim, if you will—but He was not God! For the love of the truth we rob them of their consolation, Christ was God or

He was a wretch. There is no better life escape. If a man says he is that which he is not, what do we call him? He is an impostor and a hypocrite.

If a man says that he possesses the attributes of God and he does not, we call him a blasphemer. If a man deceives the trusting and leads them into error, that means temporal and eternal shipwreck; he is a scandal and a wretch. But Strauss says that alternative and to avoid it maintain that perhaps Christ was not without sin. An indignant world has hurled the blasphemous falsehood into his face. But it was a desperate perplexity. He had to say something or confess Christ to be

God."

The Rev. Dr. A. Welsh took up many texts of Holy Scripture to prove the divinity of Christ.

Out the Upper Gymnasium
This Morning.

Actual work of remodeling the present Y. M. C. A. building began this morning when a force of workmen were engaged in tearing out the platform in the upper gymnasium. The hand ball courts have been moved to the lower gym so that play can continue their game despite the repairs that are started. The classes will hold their regular exercises in the lower gymnasium for the present and later will be moved up stairs again when the upper floor is completed while work on the swimming tank is started. From now on the interior work will be rushed as fast as possible so as to be ready for the outside construction when the weather permits.

You Can Sit Right Down and Eat Anything Served if You Get Acquainted with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

With a most pathetic sigh the dyspeptic sits down and "views with alarm" his hungry companions. Now, the best doctrine for most people to hand out to suffering stomachs is to couple a square meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. To sit down to a good meal and eat whatever is served is getting back to the good old days when grand-dad carved the roast when the family made a clean-up; and when good appetites with sound digestion produced the men and women that have made our nation what it is.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the dyspeptic's hope. They are a natural restorative of healthy action to the stomach and small intestines, because they supply the elements that the weak stomach lacks—pepsin, golden seal and other digestives.

If you are afflicted with any symptoms of stomach trouble, be assured that your digestive organs are losing power—they need help—and there is no more sensible help to be given them than to supply elements which will do the work of digestion for them.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been found by test to have digestive powers, one grain of the active principle of these tablets being sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food. It is plain that no matter what the condition of your stomach or how far your disease has progressed, one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken at meal-time will do the work—give your stomach an opportunity to regain its lost powers, the muscles will be strengthened, the glands invigorated, and you will be a new man.

All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at 20 cents a box.

Today's Edgerton News

Edgerton, Feb. 12.—Mrs. B. H. Purdy, who has been with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. W. North, left for her new home in Richland Center, Monday morning. Mr. Purdy is in business in that city and they will be in housekeeping at once. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy have made many friends in their short stay in Edgerton, especially in church circles, where both have been active workers. The Embroidery club, of which Mrs. Purdy is a member, surprised her at the parsonage Thursday evening, served refreshments and left a china cream and sugar set as a token of their esteem for her.

Mrs. Frank Williams departed this morning for Fond du Lac, where she will be guest of honor at the campfire this evening of the W. R. C. and G. A. R. of that city. Conrad Spratt of Sheboygan, department commander of the G. A. R., Hon. S. A. Cooper, and Colonel Watrous of Milwaukee, also the trustees of the Wisconsin Veterans' home will be distinguished guests. The event is in commemoration of Lincoln's and Washington's anniversaries.

Mrs. Frank Maloy of Mason City, Iowa, arrived yesterday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. W. W. Huxtable. Mrs. Frank Shea and Mrs. Frank Wyman visited the Children's Independent Home at Watonsa, Wis., in that place each of them adopted a little girl. Mrs. Wyman's girl is sixteen years of age, and Mrs. Shea's is thirteen years old.

The Columbus basketball five are scheduled to play the local five Friday evening in the high school gym. This is a booster's game and everyone is asked to be present.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, Wis., February 11.—The following are my views of the bill introduced by Assemblyman Fred L. Holmes of Dane County, under date of Feb. 7th printed in the Janesville Daily Gazette, in which he claims that the tobacco grower of the state is annually deprived of thousands of dollars due them by the dealers.

Mr. Holmes, the assemblyman, has never had any experience either in the growing or the buying of leaf tobacco. Does Mr. Holmes really think that the farmers of the state of Wisconsin are so foolish and so far behind the times, that they will still stand by and allow the dealers in tobacco or in any other farm product, to rob them in this way, especially when there is such good demand for good tobacco as there is at the present time, which makes every dealer anxious to receive every crop with only such reductions as to at least partly make up for the damaged tobacco in such crops.

Mr. Holmes' bill provides that the tobacco dealers shall settle in full at contract price regardless of damage. The writer knows of several farmers who contracted their hogs last fall at 7.10 to 7.25 per hundred to be delivered at a later date, but before the date of delivery part of the hogs were taken sick with the cholera and therefore were rejected or taken at a very low price by the stock buyers. Would Mr. Holmes be in favor of a law to compel the stock buyers to pay full contract price for the sick hogs although they were in good condition when the contract of sale was made, and it was through no fault or neglect of the farmers that caused the sickness?

We will say that Mr. Holmes would go out to some farmer and buy a fine horse for $200, pay $25.00, the balance to be paid when he was delivered, a week later. In the meantime the horse should get hurt in the barn or cut on a wire fence to damage him to the extent of one-half, would Mr. Holmes accept the horse and pay the full contract price?

Possibly Mr. Holmes is not aware of the fact that when a farmer contracts to sell a high priced crop of tobacco he must sign a contract to exclude damage and deliver in packing condition, therefore he is expected to separate the damaged from the good tobacco. When he fails to do this he is expected by the buyer to make such reduction in price as will make up for the difference in value, and thus, generally, where a dispute arises, puts a difference in opinion as to the amount of damage among the good. But in all cases where an agreement can not be reached satisfactory, I never knew of a case where the buyer refused to release the farmer from the contract on the return of the advance money paid him by the buyer. Therefore I fail to see where there is any reason for litigation or any chance for the buyer to rob the farmer.

I think Mr. Holmes is very unreasonable in his bill when he would compel the buyers to accept and pay the full amount of contract price regardless of the condition and damage of such crop at the time of delivery. Possibly Mr. Holmes can frame up a law that will not conflict with constitution whereby he can impose a penalty on the grower to the amount of one cent per pound on all tobacco sold before it is stripped from the stalk. This would stop the whole game and would meet with the approval of the farmer as well as the buyers.

But, think it would be impossible to make a law compelling a buyer to accept the tobacco regardless of the condition when there is a signed agreement to exclude all damage from such sale. Of course, Mr. Holmes goes further and somewhat modifies or rather muddles his bill by the following words, "Unless any inferior quality or unsound conditions of such crop shall be due to the willful act or negligence of the growers."

Now here is where dispute and litigation is sure to arise. The writer has had a number of years experience both in the growing and buying of tobacco, and I defy anyone to tell when looking at tobacco as to whether the damage was due to the willful act of the growers or condition of the weather or by accident, for instance, the tobacco shed is burned, did the grower willfully neglect the care of his shed or was the weather conditions such that it was impossible to save it. In case it is wet did the grower put water on it or did it accidentally get wet by some other cause? Suppose the shed is burned, blown down by storm and almost ruins the crop—no fault of the farmers. But Mr. Holmes says the buyer must receive it at contract price.

CONANT'S REPORT
STIRS STATESMEN

The recent report of Luther Conant, commissioner of corpora tions, to President Taft, dealing with railway control of great steamship lines, has created something of a stir at Washington, and efforts will be made to pass legislation doing away with the evil. According to Conant's report, water lines along the eastern seaboard have become, to a large extent, auxiliaries or subsidiaries of railroads. While competition exists in greater measure on the Pacific coast, the commissioner points out important instances of railroad control there.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

IN HONOR OF THE DAY.

HAVE you remembered what day it is? If by any possible chance you have forgotten, let me bring it to your mind by telling you that as usual on the twelfth of February, I am turning over my space to one who, though he laid no claim to being either author or philosopher, can fill this space as richly as the greatest of either.

A Few More Sayings of Abraham Lincoln.

"He who does something at the head of one regiment surpasses him who does nothing at the head of a hundred."

"No time religiously spent is ever lost."

"I am bound to win, but I am bound to live up to what light I have."

"I have been driven to my knees many times by the realization that I had nowhere else to go."

"Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it."

"Rather an interesting utterance when we relate it to the white slavery and the wage slavery, and the other kinds of modern slavery that have taken the place of the old type."

"The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise high with the occasion."

"If we do right God will be with us, and if God is with us we cannot fail."

"Do not worry, eat three square meals a day, say your prayers, be courteous to your creditors, keep your digestion good, exercise, go slow and go easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but, my friends, these, I reckon, will give you a good life."

Lincoln's Rules for Living.

"I have never had a policy. I have simply tried to do what seemed best each day as each day came."

In view of the fact that the agnostics sometimes try to claim Lincoln for their ranks because he did not belong to any church, the following is especially interesting. I regret that I am not absolutely sure of its authenticity and cannot quote the authority. I clipped it from a magazine. Perhaps someone can inform me of its source:

"I have never united myself to any church because I have found difficulty in giving my assent, without mental reservation, to the long, complicated statements of Christian doctrines which characterize their Articles of Belief and Confession of Faith. Whenever a church will inscribe over its altar, as its sole qualification for membership, the Saviour's condensed statement of substance of both law and gospel: 'Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself,' that church will I join with all my soul."

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

Unpleasant Sauce for Home Cookery

SOME times I get downright provoked at Jane," said Dolly. "What has Jane done now?" asked Mabel, calmly sewing. "It's the same old story; but once in a while it exasperates me more than usual. I was there for a week-end, you know."

"Yes."

"Jane has a lovely home, one must admit that. Her parlor we would call it, but she calls it drawing-room,—is in gold and white, and her dining room in blue and white, and her bedrooms are exquisite; and she has the most beautiful rugs and silver and cut glass, and such things. But the way she worries over those things really wears me out. I come away exhausted, for I catch the strain."

"I'd rather live in a log cabin, than live that way, wouldn't you?"

"Yes. She's always at the children about making finger marks on her white paint. And while she's talking to you, she'll suddenly jump up and say, 'I declare you can't get a maid that'll half dust.' And then she'll wipe some imaginary dust from a picture. And if I move around in my chair much, especially her drawing-room ones, I know she is thinking I'm wearing out the silk upholstery. She growls all the time because the maid shakes some of her oriental rugs too hard. And one day at luncheon, she'd nothing but groan and complain how tired she was, because she had had to wash all the cut glass, for she wouldn't trust anybody else to do it."

"She serves up her housekeeping with the sauce of self-sacrifice, doesn't she?"

"Yes, and it certainly is not a sauce piquante. It detracts rather than lends relish."

Mabel nodded. "I have a friend like that. I always feel like a criminal when I am eating her jelly, and she tells me how hard she worked and what a hot day it was when she made it."

"That's my feeling when I visit Jane," said Dolly. "It seems I oughtn't to come and make her so much work."

"She doesn't mean it that way. She'd be awfully disappointed if you didn't come, and she had nobody to tell how hard she worked. She really takes a lot of satisfaction in keeping things so shining, even if she does do a lot of groaning about it."

"It would be nice for all concerned if she didn't groan," said Dolly. "Just imagine living in that atmosphere all the time! I shouldn't think her husband and children would enjoy their home, even if it is so beautiful."

"No, I don't approve of it," said Mabel. "Housekeeping is no easy job. But I think if we undertake it, we ought to buckle down to it and put it through without walls and lamentations. The sauce of sacrifice is not the most appetizing relish for home cookery."

Barbara Boyd.

up fish left over, put in mixing bowl, add one-fourth its quantity of lettuce cut up and same amount of celery cut in strips. Mix all carefully together, adding pepper and salt to taste. Arrange neatly in salad bowl and pour over some mayonnaise dressing.

Things Worth Knowing.
IF PEARL BUTTONS on your waists have become dulled and scratched from frequent laundering, rub them with olive oil, cover with nail powder and polish with chamomile skin.

KEEPING BREAD FRESH—Put dough in small bucket of water containing medium sized sponge in side breadbox. Change water often, replacing with clean cold water, and your bread will keep fresh as long as it is needed.

TO KEEP MASHED POTATOES warm for some time, set pan, they are in, in pan of hot water on back of stove. When ready to serve, heat them a little; they will be as light and nice as at first.

Odd Candies.
ODD LITTLE CHOCOLATE DROPS which will delight children—Melt half cup grated chocolate in one-fourth cup milk; add one cup sugar, half tablespoon butter, and boil 10 minutes. When mixture is partially cool, dip small oyster crackers in it and stand them on buttered paper to set the covering.

HICKORY NUT PUFFS—Whites of three eggs, two cups sugar (one of pulverized and one of granulated), one teaspoon vanilla, two cups hickory nuts chopped fine. Bake in very slow oven.

Chicken Wisdom.
CURING HENS WITH COLDS—As soon as noticed, take hen in to a warm fire, give her a teaspoonful of castor oil and keep her by the fire all day or all night.

I HAVE FOUND that if one will keep a pan of ashes or sand with sulphur in it for the young turkeys and chickens to dust in, they will not be troubled with lice.

Clearing the Table.
First—Remove the food. Never waste anything.

Second—Always empty the cream from the pitcher.

Third—Always empty and wash the coffee or teapot.

"Ellen, Ellen, strong and able. Keep your elbows off the table."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am in love with a young man who is two years my senior; I never knew I liked him until I found out I could not go with him. One evening I turned him down, the next evening I had a date with him to go to a party and on the following Sunday turned him down. He is mad at me now and won't ask me any more. He even goes on the other side of the street so he won't have to meet me.

(2)—Is it fashionable for a lady to wear more than one ring on her finger, or does it show lack of taste?

(3)—Is it proper to correspond with a young man whom I have never seen but an acquaintance of my friend and of whom I have heard a great deal?

(4)—He seems to be rather "touchy," however, you cannot have loved him very much or you would not have been so ready to "turn him down." Better be more considerate of the next one.

(5)—It is never in good taste to wear much jewelry. (3)—An introduction by mail is as good as an introduction in person; but it is best to be rather careful about corresponding with any young man.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of 17, like the boys, but my parents won't let me go with them. I go with them once in a while anyway. For awhile my parents wouldn't be at home in the evening and my friend and I would either entertain the boys at my home or go out walking with them. We would never stay out after nine o'clock. We did this without our parents' consent. Was it very wrong?

HELEN.

The greatest wrong you did was to let your little girl was to deceive your parents. I would rather have my dear mother trust me, than to go with all the boys in Christendom.

It was not nice for you to entertain the boys at home when your parents were away. A young girl's good name can be ruined forever that way. Some day you will want to marry a good man. You won't want him to know about these things, will you? Then don't do them, Helen, because a good man doesn't want a girl who has been pawed over by every boy she knows.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I am 19 and have the acquaintance of a man some years older. We are good friends and he seemed always to want to be near me, although we never were on the go much except a few times. We moved and recently I received a letter in which he says he wishes I were his but doesn't say a word of love. Do you think he cares for me?

Am I doing whether I love him or not, please advise me.

"THANKS."

He must love you or he would not want to marry you.

You might answer by saying that you are not quite sure of your feelings, but that if he is willing to wait a little while you think you can give him a definite answer. Thank him for the honor he has done you in asking you to be his wife.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My neck, shoulders, bust, hips and so on, I am a young woman and have no bust at all. I have tried everything

"Go round and round the table; Look from center to the corners; Now close your eyes a moment And see how all things lay."

Serving a Meal.

First—The one who has the care of the table should fill the glasses, just before the family comes to the table. If they need refilling during the meal remove from the right.

Second—Try not to be late at the table or be called more than once. Be pleasant and courteous. Do not interrupt others when talking.

Third—In taking your place step to the right of your chair. Wait until father gives the signal to be seated.

Fourth—Serve the guests first, setting the plate down from the right.

Fifth—When serving a side dish go to the left, so that the one served can use the right hand in helping himself.

Sixth—When clearing the table for dessert remove the food first; then the plates from the left side of the person and brush the crumbs.

Seventh—Little folks should be careful of the knife and fork while eating. Place on the side of the plate when not in use.

Eighth—Be careful, too, of the position at the table.

Fourth—Put the pieces of butter all together in a bowl or small jar and cover.

Fifth—Save every piece of bread and put into the breadbox.

Sixth—Meat should never be put away on a platter, but on a smaller dish and the remaining vegetables also.

Seventh—Empty the glasses and stand nearest the dishpan to be washed first.

Eighth—Gather knives and forks together and spoons separately.

Ninth—Empty cups and set cups and saucers together near the knives, forks and spoons.

Tenth—Set bread and butter plates and small dishes next.

Eleventh—Scrape all food from the plates, also other dishes used for food.

Twelfth—Remove all else from the table. Brush the cloth and fold carefully in the creases and lay in a drawer with the napkins. Brush up any crumbs from the rug with the sweeper, and lay a centerpiece and stand a dish of fruit, ferns or flowers on the table.

Molasses Ginger Snaps.

Material—Molasses, ½ cup; pastry flour, 3 cups; brown sugar, ½ cup; milk, ½ cup; butter, 3 tablespoons; ginger, 2 teaspoons; soda, ½ teaspoonful.

Directions—Put the molasses in the saucepan over the fire. Watch every minute until it boils. Remove from the fire and add the sugar, butter and soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water. Set back over the fire until the butter is melted. Take again from the fire and add the milk. Let stand until cold. Then add the flour and ginger sifted together. Roll out into a thin sheet, cut with a round or fancy cutter, lay on floured baking pans and bake in a moderate oven until a light brown.

All measurements level. Flour sifted before measuring.

"THANKS."

He must love you or he would not want to marry you.

You might answer by saying that you are not quite sure of your feelings, but that if he is willing to wait a little while you think you can give him a definite answer. Thank him for the honor he has done you in asking you to be his wife.

Those born today will have many strange whims. If they show a taste for any special line of study or work, they should be encouraged in it, but recreation, cheerful and active, should be insisted upon often enough to balance the sometimes morbid fads of these children.

Always Wakes Up Later.

Remorse is a policeman who has been sleeping on his beat.

Fish Leftovers.

FISH AU GRATIN—Chop very fine the remains of fish, add pepper, salt and cayenne to taste. Grate two ounces cheese, then boil with one cup milk or fish stock, and thicken with one tablespoon flour and piece of butter as large as a nut. Heat butter small pie dish, put in a layer of fish, then cheese and sauce, and continue until fish is full. On top put layer of bread crumbs and cheese, sprinkle parsley over, then put in oven for half an hour to heat through and brown on top.

FISH CROQUETTES—Pick fish from bones and finely flake it, season well with pepper and salt, add equal quantity of bread crumbs and one teaspoon chopped parsley. Mix into stiff paste with one or two beaten eggs, form into croquettes, dip in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat until a golden brown.

FISH SALAD—Skin, bone and cut

TOO fat! Rona Dutch cocoa has all the exquisite flavor of the Trinidad cocoa bean. It's better for drinks and pastries than chocolate—because it's not too fat.

You'll find Rona a great improvement over chocolate for all cooking purposes—for the harmful and excessive fat is removed and only the rich chocolate flavor and nourishment retained.

maid? People are calling us old maids already.

TWO PALS.

My dears, I'd rather be a fairly well contented old maid than an unhappy wife. It's far better to wait for a good man than to take any kind of a man who happens to show up, even if you wait all your life. I believe in marrying when you can marry the right sort, but in being a happy old maid if you can't.

Perhaps you are too jolly. Be a little more in earnest and give the fellows a chance to be sentimental—without being slushy, of course.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl and very fleshy. Would you please tell me something that will make me thin? Will it make the bust small?

FAT GIRL.

Some girls are just naturally fat and it seems they can do nothing at all to get thin.

Perhaps as you get older you will grow thinner. Meantime, make up your mind to always eat less than you think you want. Eat no sweets or pastries or fats. Exercise a lot until you perspire freely. Take hot baths, putting a couple of pounds of Epsom salts in the water; twice a week or every other day, if you can stand it.

If you get thin your bust will be smaller.

"WASTE PRODUCTS IN MEAT WASTE ENERGY."

"To win a world's championship," says W. Earl Flynn, "I thoroughly eliminated the effects of meat from my system before I undertook the test. We have a challenge of any amount of money for any meat eater who wishes to compete against our record, and we are perfectly safe to say that no meat eater can ever win a world's record against a non-meat-eater, all things being equal." This agrees with the results of endurance contests in Germany, England and America, showing that the waist products, poisons, in flesh meat waste energy, mental as well as physical, since the vigor of the mind depends upon that of the body, particularly of the brain. We can eat for efficiency without losing any of the satisfaction due to pleasing the appetite.

When our mothers scrubbed floors, they had beautiful neck, shoulders and bust.

We are too high-toned to scrub floors these days, but we might go through the motions on our knees, first opening the windows and learning to breathe deep through the nose, not the mouth. Rowing is an excellent exercise for this, too, though of course one can't very well row a boat in winter time. All outdoor exercise, which means deep breathing, will be beneficial.

Perhaps you sew or read a great deal, or sit at your work. Make up your mind that you must hold your chin high, must breathe clear down to the bottom of your lungs, must sit straight, must occasionally stand up and stretch yourself, and must swing your arms when you walk.

PAULIST FATHERS A NATIVE ORDER

Established at New York in February 1858 by Five American Converts to Roman Catholic Church.

"Who and what are the Paulist Fathers?" is a question that has been frequently asked since the announcement of the mission in this city by the Rev. A. O. Welsh, who is a member of that order of the Roman Catholic priesthood. For the information of the questioners the Gazette gives here a few of the most important facts concerning them.

The Paulist Fathers, or Missionary Priests of St. Paul the Apostle, the formal name of the order, were established at New York city in February, 1858 with the approbation and encouragement of Archbishop Hughes. The founders were Isaac T. Hecker, Clarence A. Walworth, Augustine F. Hewitt, George Dishon and Francis A. Baker. They were originally members of the Redemptorist order and Pope Pius IX. released them from it and authorized them to form a new body to be devoted to a special mission in American missionary work. All the five founders had themselves been converts, were men of American birth and thoroughly imbued with the American spirit.

Of the five Father Hecker was easily leader. His father was a thrifty brass founder in Hester street, New York city. In 1843 Hecker was a member of the famous Brook farm Transcendentalist Community with Emerson, Hawthorne, Curtis, Parker, Ripley and Dana. Here Hecker gained his first idea of the common life which he, as first speaker of a new religious community was to put into effect. He entered the Roman Catholic church and the Redemptorist order before becoming the founder of the new one.

The Paulist Fathers established the "Catholic World" in 1865 and the Columbian Press, a publishing house. They are also the publishers of the Roman Catholic weekly "America." Besides the New York headquarters they have houses in Chicago, San Francisco, Winchester, Tennessee and Austin, Texas.

The "Outlook" in commenting on the fiftieth anniversary of the order in 1910 said:

"The Paulist work has been peculiarly productive of harmony in the relations between the Roman Catholic and the Republic, and has emphasized with equal voice the spiritual force of a great communion together with sound morals and patriotic citizenship."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE ROLLER TOWEL

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The roller towel is a criminal offense which is perpetrated upon helpless hotel guests by landlords who were formerly in the livery stable business.

Roller towels are made of some durable, fire-proof material which will withstand the attacks of enraged guests for a long period of time. You can take a well seasoned roller towel, tear it from its watery shoot and throw it into the sample room behind an oil stove, and inside of a week it will bob up at the old stand, ready to wait on the trade.

Nobody has ever been arrested for carrying off a roller towel in his grip and taking it home for a keepsake.

Roller towels are usually hung on a revolving head rest, which is liable to pull out at any moment and imbed itself in the resident's ear. This allows the towel to fall on the floor and collect all the dirt that has been tramped in during the past week, which guests with gratifying success. In youth the roller towel is a simple, little article, with a light mauve complexion and a non-scratching cuticle. After it has done business in a hotel lavatory for twenty-five or thirty years, however, it loses considerable of its early bloom and will bite the hand that caresses it. Many a man who was in a hurry to make the train has leaped into the embrace of a decrepit towel and come out looking as if he had been run over by a disc harrow.

Roller towels are never changed until they can be stood up in the corner like an umbrella. Every once in a while the landlord will remember that it is time for the semi-annual shift and hang a clean towel in the lavatory, when it is assaulted at once by everybody who is not in the dining room. It is a painful sight to see a pink-faced traveling man hunting eagerly for a clean spot on a roller towel, in order to wipe the soap out of his eyes.

Roller towels would be more popular if they were washed at the beginning of each fiscal year and then planned down with .00 sandpaper.

New Grand Central Terminal

A wonderful city, within a city, built for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public.

The main Grand Central Terminal Building in New York is now open to the public. This vast improvement is more than a great railway Terminal—it is a Terminal City, complete in itself, providing every detail essential to comfort and convenience.

It will embrace convention, amusement and exhibition halls, hotels, clubs and restaurants; post office, express offices, modern apartment and office buildings, and numerous stores and specialty shops.

Grand Central Terminal is the Heart of New York. At Forty-second Street and Park Avenue

(Fourth Avenue), one block from Fifth Avenue and convenient to Broadway.

It is the only Terminal on all lines of local traffic—subway, surface and elevated. More than 7,000 cars pass its doors every day, affording easy transit facilities to any part of Greater New York. Around it, and within a radius of a few blocks, are forty-nine hotels, fifty-eight clubs and thirty-five theatres.

Three new lines of underground transportation are now building to Grand Central Terminal, and soon there will be six levels for human traffic in Forty-second Street.

Underneath the Terminal City and its streets are 33 miles of railway tracks on two separate levels, the upper for Through Service and the lower for Suburban Service.

Each level forms a complete terminal in itself, separate entrances and exits, with equal facilities for the comfort of passengers.

Both levels are reached by gently inclined walks. No stair climbing, and no confusion, since incoming and outgoing traffic is separated.

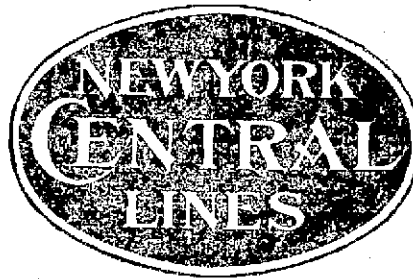

Ticket, Pullman, Baggage and other facilities are progressively arranged from waiting room to train, no step need be retraced.

POINCS OF THE VAN LOONS—Grace ought to start a Correspondence School on Economy.

The STOLEN SINGER

by MARTNA DELLINGER

COPYRIGHT 1911 THE BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY

"Mr. Van Camp never gave me any kind of flower. He thinks flowers are the most intimate of all gifts, and should only be exchanged between sweethearts. At least, I heard him expound some such theory years ago, when we first knew him."

Madame smiled—a significant smile, if any one had been looking. Nothing further was said until Melanie unexpectedly shot straight to the mark with:

"How do you think he would do, Auntie, in place of Count Lorenzo?"

Madame Reynier showed no surprise. "He is a sterling man; but your cousin would never consent to it."

"And if I should not consult my cousin?"

"My dear Melanie, that would entail many embarrassing consequences; and embarrassments are worse than crimes."

Melanie could laugh at that, and did. "I've already answered a note from Mr. Van Camp this morning. Auntie. No, don't worry," she playfully answered a sudden anxious look that came upon her aunt's countenance. "I've not said 'yes' to him. But he's coming to see me at twelve. If I don't give him a chance to say what he has to say, he'll take one anywhere. He's capable of proposing on the street-cars. Besides, I have something also to say to him."

"Well, my dear, you know best; certainly I think you know best," was Madame Reynier's last word.

Mr. Van Camp arrived on the stroke of twelve, an expression of happiness on his lean, quizzical face.

"I'm supposed to be starting on a cruise," he told Melanie, "but luck is with me. My cousin hasn't turned up—or rather he turned up only to disappear instantly. Otherwise he would have dragged me off to catch the first ebb-tide, with me hanging back like an anchor-chain."

"Is your cousin, then, such a tyrant?"

"Oh, yes; he's a masterful man, is Jimmy."

"And how did he 'disappear' instantly?" It sounds mysterious.

"It is mysterious, but Jim can take care of himself; at least, I hope he can. The message said he had sailed on the Jeanne D'Arc, whatever that is, and that I was to look after our hired yacht, the Sea Gull."

Melanie looked up, startled. "The Jeanne D'Arc, was it?" she cried. "Are you sure? But, of course—there must be many boats by that name, are there not? But did he say nothing more—where he was going, and why he changed his plans?"

"No, not a word more than that. Why? Do you know of a boat named the Jeanne D'Arc?"

"Yes, very well; but it can not matter. It must be another vessel, surely. Meanwhile, what are you going to do without your companion?"

Aleck rose from the slender gilt chair where, as usual, he had perched himself, walked to the window and thrust his hands into his pockets for a contemplative moment, then he turned and came to a stand squarely before Melanie, looking down on her with his quizzical, honest eyes.

"That depends, Melanie," he said slowly, "upon whether you are going to marry me or not."

For a second or two Melanie's eyes refused to lift; but Aleck's firm-planted figure, his steady gaze, above all, his dominating will, forced her to look up. There he was, smiling, strong, big, kindly. Melanie started to smile, but for the second time that morning her eyes unexpectedly filled with tears.

"I can't talk to you towering over me like that," she said at last softly, her smile winning against the tears. Aleck did not move. "I don't want you to 'talk' to me about it; all I want is for you to say 'yes.'"

"But I'm not going to say 'yes' at least, I don't think I am. Do sit down."

If you are out of a job, or would like to change your occupation, let a want ad do the soliciting for you.

Aleck started straight for the gilt chair.

"Oh, no; not that! You are four times too big for that chair. Besides, it's quite valuable; it's a Louis Quinze."

Aleck indulged in a vicious kick at the ridiculous thing, picked up an enormous leather-bottomed chair made apparently of lead, and placed it jauntily almost beside Miss Reynier's chair, but facing the other way.

"This is much better, thank you," he said. "Now tell me why you think you are not going to say 'yes' to me."

Melanie's mood of softness had not left her; but sitting there, face to face with this man, face to face with his seriousness, his masculine will and strength, she felt that she had something yet to struggle for, some deep personal right to be acknowledged. It was with a dignity, an aloofness, that was quite real, yet very sweet, that she met this American lover. He had her hand in his firm grasp, but he was waiting for her to speak. He was giving her the hearing that was, in his opinion, her right. "In the first place," Melanie began, "you ought to know more about me—who I am, and all that sort of thing. I am, in one sense, not at all what I seem to be; and that, in the case of marriage, is a dangerous thing."

"It is an important thing, at least. But I do know who you are; I know long ago. Since you never referred to the matter, of course I never did. You are the Princess Auguste Stephanie of Krolvetz, cousin of the present Duke Stephen, called King of Krolvetz. You are even in line for the throne, though there are two or three lives between. You have incurred the displeasure of Duke Stephen and are practically an exile from your country."

"A voluntary exile," Melanie corrected.

"Voluntary only in the sense that you prefer exile to absolute submission to the duke. There is no alternative, if you return."

Melanie was silent. Aleck lifted the hand which he held, touched it gently with his lips and laid it back beside his fellow on Melanie's lap. Then he rose and lifted both hands before her, half in fun and half in earnestness, as if he were a courtier doing reverence to his queen.

"So, your Highness, how ready I am to do you homage! Only smile on the most devoted of your servants."

Melanie could not resist his gentle gaiety. It was as if they were two children playing at a story. Aleck, in such a mood as this, was as much fun as a dancing bear, and in five minutes more he had won peals of laughter from Melanie. It was what he wanted—to brighten her spirits. So presently he came back to the big chair, though he did not again take her hand.

"I knew you were titled and important, Melanie, and at first I thought that sealed my case entirely. But you seemed to forget your state, seemed not to care so very much about it, and perhaps that made me think it was possible for us both to forget it, or at least to ignore it. I haven't a gold throne to give you; but you're the only woman I've ever wanted to marry, and I wasn't going to give up the chance until you said so."

"Do you know also that if I marry out of my rank and without the consent of Duke Stephen, I shall forfeit all my fortune?"

"Cut off without a cent!" Aleck laughed, but presently paused, embarrassed for the first time since he had begun his plea. "I, you know, haven't millions, but there's a decent income, even for two. And then I can always go to work and earn something."

He smiled at her, giving information to a thirsty world about the gilt-silt, as you call it. It would be fun, earning money for you; I'd like to do it."

Melanie smiled back at him, but left her chair and wandered uneasily about the room, as if turning a difficult matter over in her mind. Aleck stood by, watching. Presently she returned to her chair, pushed him gently back into his seat and dropped down beside him. Before she spoke, she touched her fingers lightly, almost lovingly, along the blue veins of his big hand lying on the arm of the chair. The hand turned, like a magnet spring, and imprisoned hers.

"No, dear friend, not yet," said Melanie, drawing away her hand, yet not very quickly, after all. "There is much yet to say to you, and I have been wondering how to say it, but I shall do it now. Like the heroes in the novels," she smiled again, "I am going to tell you the story of my life."

"Good!" said Aleck. "All ready for chapter one. But your maid wants you at the door."

"Go away, Sophie," said Melanie. "Serve luncheon to Madame Reynier alone. I shall wait; and you'll have to wait, too, poor man!" She looked scrutinizingly at Aleck. "Or are you, perhaps, hungry? I'm not going to talk to a hungry man," she announced.

"Not a bite till I've heard chapter thirty-nine!" said Aleck.

In a moment she became serious again. "I have lived in England and here in America," she began, "long enough to understand that the differences between your people and mine are more than the differences of language and climate; they are ingrained in our habits of thought, our education, our judgment of life and of people. My childhood and youth were wholly different from yours, or from what an American girl's could be; and yet I think I understand your American women, though I suppose I am not in the least like them."

"But I, on the other hand, have seen the dark side of life, and particularly of marriage. When I was a child I was more important in my own country than I am now, since it seemed then that my father would succeed to the throne. I was brought up to feel that I was not a woman, but a pawn in the game of politics. When I had been out of the convent for a year or more, I loved a youth, and was loved in return, but our marriage was laughed at, put aside, declared impossible, because he was of a rank inferior to my own. My lover disappeared. I know not where or how. Then affairs changed. My father died, and it transpired that I had been officially betrothed since childhood to Duke Stephen's brother, the Count Lorenzo. The duke was my guardian, and there was no one else to whom I could appeal; but the very week set for the wedding I faced the duke and declared I would never marry the count. His Highness raged and stormed, but I told him a few things I knew about his brother, and I made him see that I was in earnest. The next day I left Krolvetz, and the duke gave out that I was ill and had gone to a health resort; that the wedding was postponed. I went to France and hid myself with my aunt, took one of my own middle names and her surname, and have been known for some time, as you know, as Melanie Reynier."

"I know you wish to tell me all these things, Melanie, but I do not want you to recall painful matters of the past now," said Aleck gently. "You shall tell me of them at another time."

The color brightened in Melanie's face, her eyes glowed.

"No, not another time; you must understand now, especially because all this preface leads me to what I really want to say to you. It is this: I do not now care for the man I loved at nineteen, nor for any of the other men of my country who have been pleased to honor me with their regard. But ever since those early days I have had a dream of a home—a place different from Duke Stephen's home, different from the homes of many people of my rank. My dream has a husband in it who is a companion, a friend, my equal in love, my superior in strength."

Melanie's eyes lifted to meet Aleck's, and they were full of an almost tragic passion; but it was a passion for comprehension and love, not primarily for the man sitting before her. She added simply: "And for my dream I'd give all the wealth, all the love, I have."

The room was very still. Aleck Van Camp sat quiet and grave, his forehead resting on his hand. He looked up, finally, at Melanie, who was beside him, pale and quite worn.

"Poor child! You needed me more than I thought!" was what he said.

But Melanie had not quite finished. "No, that is not enough, that I should need you. You must also need me, want what I alone can give you, match my love with yours. And this, I think, you do not do. You calculate, you remain cool, you plan your life like a campaign, and I am part of your equipment. You are a thousand times better than Count Lorenzo, but I think your principles of reasoning are the same. You do not love me enough, and that is why I can not say 'yes.'"

Aleck had taken this last blow standing. He walked slowly around and stood before Melanie, much as he had stood before her when he first asked her to marry him; and this time, as he looked down on her fairness, there was infinite gentleness and patience and love in his eyes. He bent over, lifted Melanie's two hands, and drew her bodily out of her seat. She was impassive. Her quick alertness, her vitality, her passionate seriousness, had slipped away. Aleck put his arms around her very tenderly and kissed her lips; not a lover's kiss exactly, and yet nothing else. Then he looked into her face.

"I shall not do this again, Melanie dear, till you give me leave. But I have no mind to let you go, either. You and Madame Reynier are going on a cruise with me; will you? Get your maid to pack your grip. It will be better for you than the 'professional advice' which you came to New York for." Aleck stopped suddenly, his practical sense coming to the surface. "Heavens! You haven't had any lunch, and it's all times of the day!" He rang the bell, begged the maid to fetch bread and butter and tea and to ask Madame Reynier to come to the drawing-room. When she appeared, he met her with a grave, but in no wise a cowed, spirit.

"Madame Reynier, your niece refuses, for the present, to consider herself engaged to me; I, however, am unequivocally betrothed to her. And I shall be endlessly grateful if you and Miss Reynier will be my guests on the Sea Gull for as long a time as you find it diverting. We shall cruise along the coast and put into harbor at night, if it seems best; and I'll try to make you comfortable. Will you come?"

Madame Reynier was willing if Melanie was; and Melanie had no strength, if she had the will, to combat Aleck's masterful ways. It was soon settled. Aleck swung off down the street, re-reading Jim's letter, intent only on the Sea Gull and the preparations for his guests. But at the back of his mind he was thinking, "Poor girl! She needs me more than I thought!"

Satisfaction in Life.

I would have nobody to control me; I would be absolute; and who but I? Now, he that is absolute can do what he likes; he that can do what he likes can take his pleasure; he that can take his pleasure can be content; and he that can be content has no more to desire. So the matter's over; and come what will come, I am satisfied.—Cervantes.

Many as One.

The value of one person's mind or one person's work is steadily diminishing; it is the associate mind, the many hearts beating as one, that now move the world; and this is so well understood by women that they are rapidly learning what can be accomplished in economic, social and intellectual life by the power of an educated public opinion.

A Valuable Suggestion

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, brick-dust, or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kitcher's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kitcher & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention the Janesville Daily Gazette.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthews Adams

BY WALT MASON

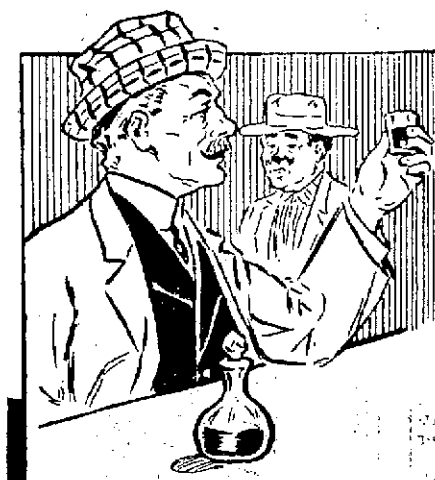

If you remark in cordial tones that J. Augustus Cacus-Jones is worth his weight in gold, the fact will doubtless reach your ears and he will smile and give three cheers as soon as he is told. Then Cacus-Jones will demonstrate how much he can appreciate a tribute of the sort; and as he through the village wends he'll pause a while to tell his friends GOOD POLICY that you're a first-class sport. If people, trying to be smart, should roast you, he will take your part, and swear that you're a bird; your good repute he will defend—and thus you will gain a faithful friend, by saying kindly word. If you inform the village cronies that J. Augustus Cacus-Jones is but a false alarm, he'll hear of your remark, and then, throughout the busy haunts of men, he'll try to do you harm. It's human nature thus to knock if some one bids you on the block, or kicks you on the shins; the hero only lives in books who turns the other cheek, gadooks, and takes a swat and grins. So if you'd have the people praise you as they go their divers ways, praise others when you can; say pleasant things about the folks who with you toil and bear their yokes, for that's the better plan.

Stop That Cough In A Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balm does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by perspiration from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balm is made by Mr. Penning, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

BRANCH OFFICE FOR GAZETTE AT BAKER & SON.

For the convenience of its patrons and the public generally, The Gazette has opened a branch office with the J. P. Baker & Son, Drug Store, corner West Milwaukee and Franklin streets.

Copy for classified advertisements, orders for papers, subscriptions and matters of this nature, as well as items of news may be left at the Baker Drug store, and will receive the same prompt attention as if they were sent direct to the office.

Either telephone line number 10 will reach the Baker Drug store if it is desired to call them in connection with The Gazette's business.

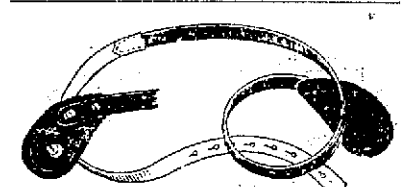

Fruit Notes.

Grape fruit is at length becoming popular in Germany. It is not so many years ago since it began to become popular in the United States, and it should be remembered that Germany was first to eat the tomato.—Christian Science Monitor.

Choice of Books.

A common book will often give you much amusement, but it is only a noble book which will give you dear friends.—Ruskin.
